

A B S T R A C T

The invention provides a combination of a piece of bodywork and a light unit for a motor vehicle, the piece of bodywork being to cover a portion of the waistline of the vehicle body and comprising an outside skin formed by a wall of plastics material, the light unit having as component elements both a housing suitable for containing at least one light source and a glass enabling light emitted by said light source to be diffused. The outside skin of the piece of bodywork includes an arrangement forming at least a portion of at least one of the component elements of the light unit.